DEATH IN EMPTY CANS

The Mysterious Explosion That Killed Mrs. Anne Edwards.

THE VICTIM EIGHTY YEARS OLD. Forgotten Nitro-Glycerine Supposed to

Have Caused the Fatality. GREAT MEETINGS AT CONNELLSVILLE

REPECTAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. BUTLER, April 30 .- Mrs. Anne Edwards aged 80, who lived on the hill west of town was instantly killed this evening by an explosion that tore the limbs from her body and shattered her house from top to bottom. The old lady lived all alone in the bouse, and it is impossible to ascertain the cause of the explosion. The only plausible theory advanced is that it was caused by nitro-glycer-ine. She told Dr. Graham a few days ago that she had found three empty caus in a fence corner near her home, and that she had taken them into the house.

It is believed that while she was handling these cans, the small quantity of explosive ma-terial remaining in them was set off. The porch where the explosion occurred was blown into kindling wood, and small pieces of human flesh kindling wood, and small pieces of human flesh were found scattered about the yard. Hundreds of the town people visited the scene of the disaster at once. Rev. R. A. Edwards, a prominent Episcopal thergyman of Philadelphia, and her only son, had long wanted his mother to make her home with him, but she preferred to live and die where she had spent the greater portion of her life.

The remains were taken to an undertaker's ro-ms, and after being dressed were conveyed to the Episcopal parsonage. The deceased had lived here for many years, and was highly esteemed.

NITRO-GLYCERINE AGAIN.

A Boy Throws Stones at an Old Can With Terrible Results.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. WAYNESBURG, April 30.—While a 13-year old son of David Vance, of near Mt. Morris this county, was cutting briars on his father's farm, he found a can that had contained nitro-glycerine. The boy took the can to the house to show it to the family, and not fully realizing to show it to the family, and not fully realizing the nature of the explosive proposed throwing a stone against it. Accompanied by his mother and some little children the boy went into the yard, and standing only a few feet away, hurled a stone into the can. A terrible explosion followed at once and the boy was instantly killed. One leg was torn from his body, his clothing was forn to shreds and his body was fearfully cut by pieces of the can. The mother was thrown violently to the ground, her clothing was all torn off and she was badly cut by the flying pieces of tin. The children were thrown to the ground, but were otherwise unhart.

THE DAUGHTER CONFESSED.

Slick Robbery Case Turned Up in Alle gheny-Perter & Donaldson Recogniz Their Goods-The Work of a Mothe and Daughter Who Formerly Cleane the Stere - Constable Billings' Shar

Consustable Billings, of the Third ward Allegheny, turned up a case of wholesal robbery yesterday. Margaret Spealer mad an information before Alderman McNult charging a young woman named Anni Fechter with stealing some lace, some hand kerchie's and a pair of stockings from her Mrs. Spealer owns a house on Humbold street, in the Seventh ward, in which sh lives with her daughter, Julia, a 16-year-olgirl, their apartments being in the garret while the balance of the house is rented t

Miss Fechter, the defendant in the suit, i Miss Fechter, the defendant in the suit, is one of the tenants. The warrant was served on her on Tuesday, and when taken to the Alderman's office she declared she had bought the goods from Mrs. Spealer, and that Mrs. Spealer had whole trunks full of new clothes that she sold to anybody that would buy. This information aroused the suspicions of Constable Billings, and he instituted a search and obtained enough to learn that some of the articles had probably been stolen. The bulk of them were marked plainly with the name of Porter & Donald son, the Liberty street drygoods firm, and he secured a clerk from that establishment to secured a clerk from that establishment to go with him to identify the goods. He first made an information against Mrs. Spealer and her daughter Julia for larceny.

Yesterday morning they found Mrs. Spealer at the door just leaving for the city. In the garret they found a number of large trunks filled with new and old goods. There were dozens of bolts of ribbon, dozens of kid gloves, dozens of handkerchiefs, a half bushel of spools of silk, flowers, corsets, hoods, jackets, boxes of fancy buckles and boxes of fine worsteds, bows and neckties, feathers and plumes. On all of them were the marks of the firm of Porter & Donaldson, and identified as their merchandise. Besides this there was found a lot of wearing apparel marked "Stephena lot of wearing apparel marked "Stephen-son." It consisted of ladies' skirts and fine son." It consisted of ladies' skirts and fine underwear, dresses, hose, boys' and men's clothing, and a bathing suit among the rest. There was found, too, a lot of silver spoons, which were marked "H.," "F." and "C. W.," three gold watches and three silver ones. All the time the men were searching, Mrs. Spealer sat in the room watching them and declaring that all of the stuff had been given her. The search made the gentlemen tired, and after loading up a wagon full of it they carted it off as evidence and left a man to watch the rest.

About 3 o'clock Constable Billings was in the vicinity of the house watching for the daughter who had been out at work all day. Sue was seen coming up the street with head!

day. Sue was seen coming up the street with a bundle under her arm, and was arrested and taken to meet her mother at the Squire's office. Her bundle contained a number of children's caps, handkerchiefs, hat-pins, ribbons and a sush. She confessed to having stelen them from Porter & Donto having stolen them from Porter & Don-aldson. Without more ado both women were sent to jail in default of bail for a hearing to-morrow afternoon.

Mrs. Spealer and her daughter formerly cleaned the store of Porter & Donaldson, which accounts for their having so much of that firm's goods. They were discharged about a month ago. Mr. Stephenson, of the firm of Arbuthout, Stephenson & Co., said the woman formerly did scrub work at his house by the day when he lived on

WILSON MINNICK'S ANSWER.

He Claims That His Wife's Ill Treatment Drove Him From Home and Family. The answer of Wilson J. Minnick to the libel for divorce filed by his wife, Elvira, was prepared yesterday and will be filed today by Attorney Yost.

The answer says: "This respondent, sav-ing to himself all manner of benefit and ing to himself all manner of benefit and advantantage of exception to the manifold uncertainties and imperfections in the said libel, for answer thereto, or to so much thereof as this respondent is advised it is in any way material for him to answer, says that true it is that said Elvira was lowfully advantantage of exception to the manifold and so clock, in the 68th year of her age. and claims that he always conducted him-self as becoming a faithful husband. He denies that he has been guilty of cruel and barbarous treatment of Eivira, and denies that he has abused her and afflicted her with personal indignities. He denies that his conduct forced his wife to leave her home and family, and says that, as a matter of fact, she did not leave at all. On the contrary he declares that his wile's unseemly conduct and ill treatment forced him to leave his home. His correct name, he says, is not William but Wilson.
